Overview

Hunter Taylor is known for his ability to understand client needs, be adaptable to changing circumstances, and to remain poised under pressure. As an associate attorney at Griffith Davison, Hunter's primary focus is to serve the firm's clients in corporate and transactional matters.

His analytical nature and his corporate law experience position Hunter well to handle complex business matters and uncover relevant insights to help clients see the big picture. Additionally, he is board certified in Commercial Real Estate Law by the Texas Board of Legal Specialization.

Hunter received his Juris Doctorate in 2017 from the Louisiana State University. As a law student Hunter concentrated his legal studies in and around the transactional and real estate practice, and wrote articles including "TDR Programs: A pragmatists approach to implementation and maintenance" during his tenure at LSU's Paul M. Hebert Law Center.

Outside of the office, Hunter's interests include woodworking and spending time outdoors.
